

At the end of the book the mice paint a small part of the paper each one of the colors. Why did the mice leave part of the paper white?

Now it's your turn to mix colors. What two colors would you mix together? Do you know what color they make? Try it yourself or research the answer!

Make a collage using old magazines or flyers. You can use just one color or choose two primary colors and the color they make when mixed. For example: yellow, blue and green.

Take a look around the park; see how many things you can find for one color or keep a tally and see which color you spot the most often.
